Let’s grab this opportunity to come together to spend time with family and friends and maybe even meet some new ones. Let’s turn The Temple Picnic into The Temple’s Family and Friend’s Friends Picnic. The idea is to get our friends and your friends together. You come to the picnic and invite your friends and they invite their friends and so on ... and before we know, there will be lots of friends, new and old, joining in the fun.

The Temple Picnic is a great way to bring the family together for some quality time, of course while enjoying the good company and all the yummy food! The cost of the picnic is only $10 per adult and $5 for kids. However, if you think that any of your friends might be interested in becoming a part of The Temple family, you can invite them as our guests. Just provide us their contact information and we’ll do the rest.

At 6:00 PM, following family activities and dinner, we will experience a special Rock My Havdalah together. This special service marks the end of Shabbat and the transition back into “everyday time.” For younger children, Havdalah is a memorable send-off to the week, with flames and spices still dancing in their heads. For the rest of us, it’s something else: a lovely mini-ritual that often gives a quick injection of energy with which to start the week.

You can make your reservations and payments online or contact Allison Shippy at 216.455.1703 or email ashippy@ttti.org.

To include your friends in the fun, make sure you add their names and contact information, in the special box on your online picnic reservation form.

In conjunction with The Temple’s Social Action Committee, please bring a pair of new socks to be donated to the Northeast Ohio Coalition for the Homeless.

WE HOPE YOU WILL JOIN US ON THIS MEANINGFUL JOURNEY.
The first paragraph on the front page of today’s New York Times (July 3, 2019) hit me hard: “Overcrowded, squalid conditions are more widespread at migrant centers along the southern border than initially revealed, the Department of Homeland Security’s independent watchdog said Tuesday. Its report describes standing-room-only cells, children without showers and hot meals, and detainees clamoring desperately for release.”

What kind of country are we if we allow this sort of thing to happen? What kind of people are we if we do not stand up against inhumane harshness, against the gratuitous cruelty which we are now witnessing? Nancy Pelosi puts the matter starkly: “The inhumanity at the border is a challenge to the conscience of America.”

It is more than clear to me that our Jewish tradition stands firmly against this kind of thing even as it also stands for the rule of law and the need for regular processes. It is significant that the Torah commands humane treatment of the stranger more than thirty-six times for that very fact suggests both a recognition of our instincts and a plea to transcend them. The stranger, after all, can be frightening to us. What strange, even hostile, ideas, attitudes and actions might the stranger bring to our shores? How might large numbers of strangers begin to alter our sense of who we are as a country?

And so we are admonished, over and over again, not “to wrong the stranger,” at first, on the principle of empathy... “for you were strangers in the land of Egypt” (Exodus 22:20) and “You know the feelings of the stranger” (Exodus 23:9). And then the foundation is extended to a central postulate of the very first chapter of the Bible which declares that human beings have an inherent dignity by virtue of the fact that all of us come into the world already “made in the image of G-d.” And more: calling upon the Bible’s fundamental “You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” long interpreted by our tradition as respect: “You shall respect, give weight, to your neighbor as you give respect to yourself and want others to give respect to you.”

Moreover, in the hands of Hillel, this concern is elevated to the very pinnacle of biblical ethics: “What is repugnant to you, do not do to your fellow human beings. All the rest is commentary.” “All the rest is commentary” implies that all of Judaism, all the ways by which we extend the meaning and reach of Judaism, can be seen as expansions of the fundamental idea that we must treat the other, whether family or friend or neighbor or stranger, with the dignity he or she inherently deserves.

In addition, the rabbis point to the biblical conviction that we are all descendants of one pair of ancestors to mean that all humanity is one family, one group of brothers and sisters. Deep down and despite all our differences, some off-putting, some even frightening, we are all connected with one another by mutual obligation. Here, as Rabbi Gerson Cohen summarizes it, genealogy is transformed into a moral message.

Indeed, human life is precarious and our brothers and sisters at our southern border have experienced, and are now experiencing, the perils that nature, governments and other human beings can bring to fragile humanity. And we must protect the fragile. Mine is not a plea for open borders and passage without process and regulation. Mine is a plea for conscience and compassion as guides to the way we treat one another, especially the vulnerable strangers in our midst. We cannot sit back and accept the current situation. For though the immediate crisis may abate, the image now thrust upon us will not soon disappear from our consciousness. And it will, as it ought to, trouble our sleep persisting as a rebuke to our country and to the failure of the values we, as Americans and as Jews, claim to hold so dear.

L’Shalom, Rabbi Roger C. Klein
Our Temple kids, your children and grandchildren, are going forth, like Abraham and Sarah, in search of the promise that is to be theirs. Keeping in touch with them while they are away is a priority for The Temple. Maintaining a connection makes a difference in their lives. It’s important because they are in search mode, their identity is evolving and they’re open to different ideas. This link provides a touchstone for them to connect with the clergy, staff and the congregation.

Everyone loves to receive packages and cards! Several times a year we send something to remind them that they are missed and that they are in our thoughts when they are away! If we have their addresses, they will receive High Holiday Day greetings; Holiday care packages; and special emails and notes from the clergy and staff. We have heard from students over the years about how much these packages mean to them and motivate them to do something Jewish even while away from home.

We depend on YOU to help keep the lines of communication open. Please help us remind them that The Temple remains a vital and important part of their lives wherever they go! Simply email your child’s contact information to jcollins@ttti.org or complete the online form at bit.ly/ttticollegeconnect and we’ll do the rest!

Feel free to call me at 216.455.1707 or email jcollins@ttti.org if you have any questions.

Linda Sanders reviews The Only Woman in the Room by Marie Benedict!

This is an exciting and intriguing novel based on the real life of actress Hedy Lamarr. Not only was she exquisitely gorgeous, but she possessed a brilliant mind. As an only child in Austria, born to a life of privilege, she chose to become an actress in the theater. An Austrian magnate, who saw her perform, fell under her spell and aggressively pursued her with his immense wealth and connections to the Nazi party. After they married, she was like a captured bird in a cage, not allowed to leave the luxurious castles her husband owned. But because of his wealth and connections, she heard details of the plotting Nazis when they were visiting her husband. Eventually, she escaped to England where she was able to board a ship to the USA. In addition to her accomplishments as a leading lady in Hollywood, she collaborated with composer George Antheil on designing a “Secret Communications System” designed to keep Nazis from intercepting Allied transmissions during WWII. Although she had a patent for her invention, it wasn’t widely known until near the end of her life. It actually was the basis for WiFi!

New DVDs: The Catcher Was a Spy brings to life the incredible true story about Moe Berg, the pro baseball player who became a World War II spy. The Jewish Cardinal tells the amazing true story of Jean-Marie Lustiger, the son of Polish-Jewish immigrants, who maintained his cultural identity as a Jew even after converting to Catholicism at an early age, joining the priesthood, and becoming an Archbishop!

JOIN THE TEMPLE CHAI LIFERS
EXCURSION TO GREAT LAKES THEATER
MATINEE PERFORMANCE OF

Julius Caesar

Sunday, October 20, 3:00 PM at the Hanna Theater

A timeless drama of intrigue, allegiance and conspiracy, Julius Caesar is the ultimate political thriller. Caesar’s triumphant return from war causes concern about one person’s pursuit of too much power. Machiavellian machinations result in resounding consequences and throw an empire into turmoil. Shakespeare’s politically-charged play reverberates through the ages and poses questions that we still seek answers to centuries later.

We will carpool from the Temple parking lot; meet at 1:45 PM and leave at 2:00 PM.

After the performance, we will walk to Republic Restaurant, 1425 Euclid Ave., for a self-pay dinner around 6:00 PM.

Cost - $68.00 includes theater and nearby parking.

Invite your friends and family to join you!

THE TEMPLE’S YOM KIPPUR BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE

The High Holy Days are fast approaching. Our congregation will again offer every family the opportunity to memorialize loved ones in our Yom Kippur Book of Remembrance. The book will be distributed during the Yizkor Memorial Service on Yom Kippur afternoon with the inscription of your loved one’s name.

It is a sacred mitzvah in the Jewish tradition to say Kaddish and to invoke the memory of our departed loved ones. They, of blessed memory, continue to inform our lives. We remember them to God by the simple act of declaring their names. The Yom Kippur Book of Remembrance will serve as the scroll of our lives – a proper and dignified testament to those who came before us, taught us, loved us and inspired us.

You are invited to participate in the Yom Kippur Book of Remembrance by filling out the form below and mailing it back to The Temple by Thursday, September 12.

IT’S QUICK AND EASY TO SUBMIT ONLINE!

- Please repeat my listing(s) from last year
- Please print the name(s) of loved one(s) CLEARLY and EXACTLY as you would like them to appear.

Previously Workmen’s Circle, this group of musicians have been playing Klezmer music together, some for as long as 20 years. In honor of our beloved former leader, the late Norman Tischler, they have rededicated the orchestra as the Norman Tischler Klezmer Orchestra (TKO).

Under the direction of our new leader, Moss Stanley, TKO offers audiences in Northeast Ohio a blend of Klezmer, Israeli, and contemporary music, with lyrics in Yiddish, Hebrew and English. They bring Klezmer back to its roots as dance tunes for weddings and other festive celebrations, and so we play lively, foot-tapping, happy music as well as love songs and other ballads. TKO encourage audience participation in the form of clapping, dancing, and singing.

Concerts are approximately one hour long and the cost varies depending on the venue. Pre-event and small ensemble concerts are also available.
