FROM THE RABBI’S STUDY

As the Passover holiday has concluded, we have now entered into the seven-week period that extends between Passover and Shavuot, the holiday we associate with the revelation and study of Torah. We call this period by its biblical, Hebrew, name – the Omer. This word, Omer, both defines a measure of volume (that is used for grain,) and identifies this fifty-day-period. Many scholars believe that the origins of the Omer may be traced to the barley harvest. In the Near East, Passover often marks the end of the rainy season, and beginning of a six-month-long dry season. At the same time, in the Land of Israel summer heat is generally not felt on a daily basis for a few weeks following the Passover. Thus, the Omer represents a transitional harvest period towards summer. During this time, to this very day, the barley stalk ripens and changes color, and once ready its grain may be harvested. Barley can only be harvested following the rainy season, and it can also be destroyed by excessive heat; the Omer is a sensitive and labor intensive moment in the agricultural year. In and of itself, this may not be particularly exciting information to learn, nor an especially compelling reason to perform any religious ritual. Yet, there is more to this story.

Barley culture was one of the earliest forms of sedentary agriculture to have taken hold in the Ancient Near East, and archaeological evidence suggests that it dates back 8,500 years BCE (Before the Common Era.) Only thousands of years later would barley-culture spread to other parts of the Mediterranean basin and further north into other parts of Europe. In Egypt, the land of Israel, and the Fertile Crescent, barley-culture would contribute to the rise of sedentary communities, trade, the development of bread, and the origins of beer-brewing. Building on the findings and hypotheses of a number of scholars, Guns, Germs, and Steel author, Jared Diamond, suggested that the effective domestication and culture of barley and related agricultural practices were significant in the rise and spread of early Eurasian civilizations. These cultures would also give rise to Judaism. For this reason, recognition of this season and its roots connects us to the very cradle and root system of our culture and social organization, as well as the significance of our natural environment and climate to the survival and thriving of humanity.

This season is clearly delineated in the books of Leviticus (23:15) and Deuteronomy (16, 9-10). Leviticus 23:16 stipulates that this period be associated with the offer of a new gift-sacrifice to God ("הוהילהשדחהחנמםתברקהו"). The association of this period with a new gift, especially the gift of a new kind of harvest – a harvest that can only emerge through the collaborative efforts of so many and that requires a hospitable and nourishing environment, is especially meaningful to me and to my family. At this time, we find ourselves in a warm, welcoming, kind environment that offers us an opportunity to collaboratively grow the kind of harvest that would hopefully contribute to the advancement of our Judaism. This is also a time for us to recognize the new gifts that are bestowed upon us and redouble our efforts to give, and to give back. This May, it will be my honor and privilege to officially join the roster of extraordinary rabbis and cantor who have led and are now leading this congregation.

As I prepare toward this moment, especially during the Omer, it is my wish and prayer that our congregational environment continue to offer the fertile ground and climate for our Jewish identities and mission to grow, evolve, and spread. I pray that we may always engage in our efforts collaboratively, mindful of each other and our respective hopes and needs. I offer this prayer with deep gratitude for the many gifts that my family and I have already received and in the hope that I may continue to grow in my ability to give back and in turn offer nourishment and guidance in this historic and vibrant holy congregation.

The award carries with it a cash gift in addition to a beautiful recognition artwork with the recipient’s name. Nominations for this special award may be submitted by any Temple member, clergy, trustee or staff member.

Please include the name of the nominee, staff position or title, and a brief description of why the person is deserving of this award. You can also fill out a ballot online at bit.ly/tttimerrilldgrossballot.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE MARCH BOARD MEETING

A small group has been formed to do advance work and lay the foundation for future strategic planning. This group has been reviewing the core values generated last fall from the Values Weekend and researching important trends both locally and nationally. A report of this team’s work will be submitted to the Board for approval and next steps will be planned.

We heard a report about the changes in the bylaws for the Maltz Museum. The Museum is an important partner of the Temple’s. The Museum has a 99-year lease and access to the Temple’s artifacts collection. There is a two-tiered governance structure. The Temple will still have the potential to have the largest number of appointed trustees to the Maltz Board.

The Engagement subgroup of the Advancing Board Leadership initiative reported about their work and the materials they reviewed. They discussed the many ways congregants can engage at The Temple and the importance of creating an environment that accommodates all types of engagement. The Board broke into small groups and discussed this important question: How do we ensure that The Temple engages all congregants?
CITYMUSIC CLEVELAND CHAMBER ORCHESTRA PRESENTS

VERDI’S REQUIEM

Thursday, May 2 at 8:00 PM
Milton & Tamar Maltz Performing Arts Center
1855 Ansel Rd, Cleveland, OH 44106

The community is invited to attend this special performance of Verdi’s Requiem to commemorate Yom HaShoah, presented in collaboration with The Temple-Tifereth Israel. Please lend your voice of resistance to this city-wide production of the powerful requiem that was performed at Theresienstadt (Terezin) Concentration Camp 16 times in 1944.

Holocaust Remembrance Day encompasses the suffering of six million Jews who were systematically exterminated by the Nazi regime, as well as millions of people from other persecuted groups who suffered the same fate. This performance is specifically in memory of prisoners at Theresienstadt who, under the direction of the brilliant young Czech conductor and fellow prisoner Rafael Schachter, learned the entire Requiem by rote from a single score and performed it in defiance of the Nazi regime. This concert has special significance to Rabbi Jonathan Cohen, whose grandfather died at Theresienstadt.

Tickets are free, advance reservations are recommended. Visit www.citymusiccleveland.org.

LIBRARY LINES BY ANDREA DAVIDSON

_Lilac Girls_ by Martha Hall Kelly is a spellbinding and compelling page-turner to read this month as we commemorate Yom Hashoah, The Day of Remembrance. It is inspired by the life of a real World War II heroine and “reveals the power of unsung women to change history in their quest for love, freedom, redemption and second chances.” As we celebrate Yom Ha’Atzma’ut, Israel’s independence Day, we can read _Thou Shalt Innovate: How Israeli Ingenuity Repairs the World_ by Avi Jorisch and learn about Israel’s amazing inventions and innovations in the fields of technology, medicine, science, agriculture, and more. We can also read some of the Hartzmark Library’s many books by Israeli authors, such as a new novel by Eshkol Nevo: _Three Floors Up_. It is set in an upper-class Tel Aviv apartment building, and examines the interconnected lives of its residents, “whose turmoils, secrets, unreliable confessions, and problematic decisions reveal a society in the midst of an identity crisis.”

LITERARY CLUB BOOK DISCUSSION

Tuesday, May 21 at 1:00 PM

Rabbi Roger C. Klein will review _The Plot Against America_ by Philip Roth

The Pulitzer Prize-winning author uses narrative invention to imagine an alternate version of American history, where in 1940, Charles A. Lindbergh, heroic aviator and rabid isolationist, is elected president instead of F.D.R. Shortly after this, he negotiates a “cordial understanding” with Adolph Hitler, while the new government embarks on a program of “folksy anti-Semitism.”

REGISTRATION FORM FOR SATURDAY EVENTS

☒ I/we will attend:
OUR FUTURE: Informed Presentations. Congregational Conversations.

Please select one of the following opening sessions:

☒ BEING JEWISH TODAY
Rabbi Steven Fox • Rabbi Samuel Joseph • Rabbi Jennifer Lader • Rabbi Julie Schwartz
Rabbi Roger Klein, Moderator

What is our mission as Jews in the world today? What does it mean to live a Jewish life? What should it mean? What beliefs, skills, and attributes are needed to be Jewish today? What degree of Hebrew fluency is necessary? Is God optional? Is institutional affiliation vital? How should we model Jewish education for our children, our teens, and us as adults? And how do we square being the Chosen People with being part of humanity? Is it an opportunity; a responsibility; a burden?

☒ WARM AND WELCOMING?
Rabbi David Ellenson • Reverend Mitra Jafarzadeh • Rabbi Michael Marmur • Rabbi Sally Priesand
Cantor Kathy Sebo, Moderator

What is our responsibility to the congregation and to each person in it? In a warm and welcoming congregation where every person matters, is there a role for distinctions among interfaith, multi-cultural, LGBTQ, racial, and ethnic minorities, and other congregants? In understanding who is a Jew, who decides who is a Jew? Based on what factors? How does the Reform perspective on these issues differ from or align with other Jewish perspectives, perspectives in Israel, and American and world perspectives?

☒ OUR RELATIONSHIP WITH ISRAEL
Rabbi Meier Azari • Rabbi Richard Block, Senior Rabbi Emeritus
Rabbi Naamah Kelman • Rabbi Uri Regev • Rabbi Anna Levin Rosen
Rabbi Stacy Schlein, Moderator

How does the miracle of Israel embody our Jewish values and aspirations? Are there ways in which it does not? Is that a fair and reasonable question for us to ask? How can we – Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver’s congregation – foster appreciation for Israel while creating safe settings for discussions among people with strong differences of opinion? How do we educate our youth and ourselves to wrestle with these questions with confidence? And as the Jewish population in Israel grows to exceed the Jewish population in the diaspora, what changes in our relationship with Israel emerge?

☒ I/We will be staying for lunch following the Closing Session

☒ I/We will attend the Afternoon Artist Workshop with Napoleon Maddox (space is limited)

☒ I/We will attend the Celebration, Havdalah and Concert

MAKE IT COUNT: Honor, Learn, Engage

HONOR - In celebration of Rabbi Jonathan Cohen’s Installation as Senior Rabbi at The Temple and in conjunction with counting the Omer (49 days between Passover and Shavuot), our congregational family will have the opportunity to engage together in meaningful social actions.

LEARN - The counting of the Omer occurs over a seven-week period that starts at Passover and ends at Shavuot. In the Middle East, this has been a period of grain harvest. In fact, the Hebrew word “Omer” denotes a measure of grain. The Omer tends to follow the rainy season but precede the summer heat. Because it occurs between our celebrations of liberation on Passover and the receipt of the Torah on Shavuot, these weeks offer us an opportunity to prepare for Shavuot by reflecting on our Jewish values and re-dedicating ourselves to learning and social action.

ENGAGE - Count the Omer each day by reciting a blessing. Choose an action (daily, weekly or when possible) that will resonate with you and/or your family. Be creative as you explore different acts of kindness.

HOW TO GET STARTED: - visit bit.ly/omermakeitcount
The Social Action page includes the Omer blessing along with a page to help track actions and record your story on The Temple’s Facebook page or website. You may also want to express “good wishes” to Rabbi Cohen by visiting bit.ly/RJChestwishes.

This multi-generational Social Action initiative is ideal for ALL individuals, families and groups!
