In this season of darkness and light, of ends and beginnings, I send you my heartfelt wishes for continued and increased light, warmth, and inspiration throughout 2020. We are in the midst of a season characterized by the least amount of daylight in our calendar year, and beyond the seasonal darkness, there is much human-generated and exacerbated darkness around us. At the same time, we, here, have sought to reinforce and spread a renewed sense of community, solidarity, and hope beginning with the celebration of Hanukkah last month – to kindle and share light. Our community is a source of light; growing and disseminating light is our mission and purpose, and all the more so into 2020.

This time one hundred years ago, January of 1920, was also characterized by a challenging mix of darkness and light. On the one hand, within weeks of each other, a notable German edition as well as two English editions of the profoundly anti-Semitic, forged, “Protocols of the Elders of Zion” appeared. The so-called “Protocols” generated significant attention and interest, and starting in May of 1920, excerpts of this hateful book were published serially in Henry Ford’s The Dearborn Independent, helping fuel both hatred and fear of Jews throughout this country and beyond it. It bears noting that the forgery of “The protocols of the Elders of Zion” was discovered and exposed as early as 1921. However, the translation, publication, and dissemination of this book continued unabated, and helped promote anti-Semitism throughout the world. On the other hand, January 1920 marked the establishment and first meeting of the League of Nations, a new international organization that was formed to prevent war (following World War I) and open a new page in international relations. This moment also constituted a milestone in the international community’s recognition of the effort to establish a Jewish homeland in the land of Israel. Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations (which came into force in January 1920) would be the instrument for the international mandate to Britain’s administration of Palestine.

The Talmud records a rabbinic discussion about the world’s redemption. It is in the rabbis’ ask whether redemption would come in darkness or in light (in Tractate Sanhedrin 98b). Rav Simlai recalls the verse “Oh, you who desire the day of the Lord! What is the day of the Lord to you? It is darkness and not light!” (Amos 5:18), and yet Rabbi Abbahu cites Isaiah’s inspiring verses: “Rise, shine, for your light has arrived, and the dignity of the Lord has been cast upon you; Behold, darkness shall cover the land, and fog the nations, but upon you the Lord will shine, and radiance divine shall be visible upon you” (Isaiah 60:1-2). In short, the Sages of the Talmud recognize that we must be prepared to experience darkness, and remain hopeful, attune to the prospect of redemption. We must be open to light, ready to receive it, nourish it, and in turn to spread it as we seek to repair and heal our community and world, awaiting redemption, understanding that it may start in rays of light in the midst of darkness.

Whatever darkness we witness and experience around us, whether it is in the re-growing scourge of antisemitism, the increasingly bold manifestations of racism and hatred, inequality, and degradation, or the polarization and distrust that increasingly characterize our society, we must not and may not lose hope, nor relinquish our responsibility to promote and spread light. Our liturgy includes a blessing of God for the shaping of light and creation of darkness. In it we recognize the divine as the source of light shining upon the earth and all who dwell on it, as well as the ongoing renewal of creation. Towards its conclusion, we call upon God: “Shine a new light upon Zion, that we all may swiftly merit its radiance.” Throughout the generations, a number of rabbis expressed discomfort with the notion of “new light,” arguing that the light we experience is the very same light that has been our blessing from the moment of creation. And yet, our re-discovery of light may render it new and invigorating in our lives. May we all experience, grow, and spread great lights throughout this season and the coming year. May we recognize the lights of transcendence, truth, and justice, and may we radiate with the excitement of increased energy and new-found passion as our lights shine.

May 2020 be a year of blessing for all of us, and for those we touch.

With all good wishes,
Rabbi Jonathan Cohen

WE ARE EXCITED TO ANNOUNCE THE NEW “BOARD-CONGREGANT CONNECTIONS” INITIATIVE!

One of the most important functions of the Temple’s Board of Trustees is to help create a warm and welcoming community at the Temple. The Board-Congregant Connections initiative was created to support this mission. Our Board members want to know what’s on your mind and make sure you know about all the wonderful programs and activities that are happening at The Temple. Board members sent Hanukkah cards to every Temple household, and they will connect with our congregational families in other ways as well. By doing so, we hope to get to know our members better and share the many rich opportunities for friendship, learning and community that our beloved congregation has to offer. We know each connection will help strengthen our congregational families by allowing them to find comfort and meaning in our synagogue.

Board-Congregant Connections is just being launched and is intended to be an ongoing program. Our congregational family is happily quite large so you may not hear from us right away. Please do let us know if you wish to participate in the first phase of this initiative, and feel free to reach out to our Board members at any time.

Warmly,
Howard G. Epstein, MD (chevrei1953@yahoo.com)
Seth Greenfield, DDS (smgdds@yahoo.com)

Candace Anker will review The Bridal Chair by Gloria Goldreich

This book is filled with fascinating details about the art world and real-life characters. Beautiful Ida Chagall, the only daughter of Marc Chagall, is blossoming in the Paris art world beyond her father’s controlling gaze. But her newfound independence is short-lived. In Nazi-occupied Paris, Chagall’s status as a Jewish artist has made them all targets, yet his devotion to his art blinds him to their danger.

Claudia Woods will review The Weight of Ink by Rachel Kadish

In this work of historical fiction, the author interweaves the story of two brilliant women separated by centuries, one in London in the 1660s, and one in the early twenty-first century. When a cache of seventeenth-century Jewish documents’ is discovered, historian Helen Watts is tasked to find the identity of the documents’ woman scribe, the mysterious “aleph.”
TREASURE IN THE TEMPLE ARCHIVES
By Jane Rothstein, The Temple Archivist

The Temple-Tifereth Israel began its life as the Tifereth Israel Society on May 26, 1850, in a meeting called by Alexander Schwab, its founding president, at the home of merchant Sam Loeb, on Lake Street (now Lakeside Ave.) between Seneca and Banks streets (now W. 3rd and W. 6th respectively). About 30 men, all of them immigrants from German-speaking lands, attended this meeting, and several others forwarded funds, to discuss what they wanted in a Jewish religious community and to make plans for a congregation that would meet those needs. Since that day, The Temple has grown and changed in ways its founders could never have dreamed, while also maintaining the same goals of fostering community and supporting its members’ engagement with Judaism and Jewish culture. The Temple Archives documents almost every facet of our congregation’s rich, 170-year history, from its founding in 1850 through the dedication of our renovated and expanded synagogue in 2016 and the 2019 installation of our new senior rabbi.

An unseen asset, The Temple Archives is a treasure house. We’ve received intriguing items donated by individuals — members, their children, or grandchildren — including a High Holy Day ticket from 1930, Confirmation Bibles, and religious school awards. Most recently, we received, in delicate condition, an 1891 memorial booklet for Jacob Rohrheimer, one of The Temple’s earliest members and a founder of several of Cleveland’s earliest Jewish institutions, which includes a eulogy by Rabbi Aaron Hahn, The Temple’s third rabbi. Lately, I’ve been cataloging Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver’s collection of pamphlets on Zionism and the State of Israel, and this past year, the Archives mounted an on-going exhibit in the Hartzmark Room, “Moments in the History of The Temple-Tifereth Israel: Highlights from the Rabbinate of Abba Hillel Silver.” There’s so much more treasure to share, so much to inform and inspire every member and every aspect of the life of our congregation, and I look forward to doing more of it in the coming year.

The itinerary is packed with fun, good food, and a range of cultural and spiritual experiences. As a bonus, because of Rabbi Cohen’s personal connections in Israel, there are many surprises in store. This trip is designed to not be physically demanding and includes opportunities for some adventure for those who seek it (like hiking up Masada, doing more walking and exploring of certain parts of Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, etc.).

Registration is open - Space is limited to 40 people so register early!

CONGREGANTS IN THE NEWS

Barbara S. Robinson Awarded the Cleveland Heritage Medal

Barbara S. Robinson was one of four community leaders awarded the Cleveland Heritage Medal during a November 21st presentation dinner at Cleveland City Hall Grand Hall Rotunda.

Established in 2016 as the highest civilian award in Greater Cleveland, the Cleveland Heritage Medal was modeled after the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

The award recognizes those who have made laudable contributions to the development and welfare of Cleveland and its citizens. Honorees represent core values of service to others, teamwork, courage, respect and inclusion and diversity.

Howard Epstein is helping Veterans as a Volunteer Pilot

Howard Epstein, a Beachwood-based rheumatologist and recreational pilot, has flown for Angel Wings for Veterans since 2007. He isn’t a veteran and doesn’t have family in the United States Armed Forces, but he said he still feels a responsibility to veterans.

Angel Wings for Veterans is a nonprofit that flies veterans to medical appointments across the country at no cost to them. The organization’s volunteer pilots have been in the air since 1997, operating according to their mission “to ensure that no veteran in need is denied clinical care because of a lack of transportation.”

Howard states, “I wouldn’t be able to do what I’m doing today, such as flying and having the freedom to fly – I wouldn’t live in a democracy without them,” he said. “My tiny contribution is to help individuals and improve their life in any way I can, little by little.”

He’s flown about 70 missions since joining Angel Wings for Veterans.
